CEMETERIES/GRAVESTONE INSCRIPTIONS

Irish Gravestone Inscriptions: A Guide to Sources in Ulster	1 Copy	Edited by William O’Kane and Eoin Kerr
This book was published in 1999 by Heritage World – a genealogical research company – and it lists, in order of county and civil parish, those cemeteries for which the company holds gravestone inscription information on its database. The company charges a fee for access to the particular gravestone inscription sought. The book is a useful starting point for discovering whether a particular cemetery has been covered.

These Hallowed Grounds (Volume 2)1 CopyNorth of Ireland Family History Society: Lisburn Branch

A companion to volume 1, this volume records the surviving gravestone inscriptions for Christ Church Cathedral, Lisburn, County Antrim, and Friends' Burying Ground, in the city's Railway Street. There is also a list of names from Quaker burial records of all the people buried in Friends' Burying Ground, as well as a background history of Lisburn Cathedral, the Huguenots in Lisburn and Friends' Meeting House. Included are the memorials in the Cathedral and a list of burials recorded as being inside the Cathedral building as well as lists of rectors, curates and churchwardens. There are maps of both burying grounds, with keys, along with death notices and brief information on the wills of some of the people buried in the two grounds. In addition there are short biographies of 53 families connected with the grounds, 16 family trees and extra information with the names of some late 18th and early 19th century Lisburn people. The 310 pages include four in colour, with 50 black and white photographs, three maps and an index. (A4 book, 310 pages published 2005)

Hands Across the Sea: The Life and Times of Annie McManus Reihill	1 copy	John Reihill
The story of the life of a woman who was born in England and went to America aged 3. When her mother died on arrival in New York, Annie was sent back to England to live with her grandparents. A few years later, she and her sister went to live with their other grandparents in Derrylin. As a teenager, Annie fell in love with farmer Johnny Reihill but wouldn’t marry him until she had earned her dowry. Annie went to Philadelphia and after 12 years there returned to Ireland to marry Johnny. They lived together on his farm on Inishcorkie Island on Upper Lough Erne.

Ringin True: The Bells of Trummery and Beyond. 350 Years of an Irish Quaker Family	1 Copy	Bill Jackson
Archibald Bell of Arkinholme arrives in Ireland in 1655, becomes a Quaker and settles in Trummery, County Antrim. His descendants are tanners, first in Lurgan, later cotton and bleachers and spinners there and in Ballyclare, Belfast and Whitehouse. The story follows them through the '98 Rebellion, the Famine and the Great War. It chronicles those who emigrated to Cuba, the USA, Australia and New Zealand, two becoming millionaires. It examines their constancy as Friends and commitment in campaigning against slavery, colonisation, intemperance and resort to arms. The tale concludes with the election of Archibald's six-times great-grand-daughter, Professor Jocelyn Bell Burnell, co-founder of pulsars, to Fellowship of the Royal Society.

Ulster Pedigrees - Descendants in Many Lines of James Orr and Janet McClements : Ray A Jones (1997)

A book setting out the lineages of this family from c1600 onward.	1 Copy	2,562 names listed

James Orr and his family were one of the early Scottish families to arrive in Northern Ireland during the Plantation. This book follows the many lines descending from the family from c1600 onwards although not all names mentioned are accompanied by dates.

Ray Jones (USA) obtained a copy of Gawin Orr's earlier work on this family called 'Ulster Pedigrees' from the Linen Hall Library in Belfast and added further information based on his own research.

This book is also available to read on the Family Search website by looking under "Books" and entering "James Orr Janet McClement" in the search box.

On The Shining Bann – Records of an Ulster Manor	1 Copy	R.M. Sibbett
An extensive historical account of the people and townlands on the County Antrim side of the Lower Bann with a focus on the town of Portglenone and the manorial court of Cashel.
This very informative book, which is a reprint of the 1928 original, contains details of the cases heard by the manor court of Cashel and gives lists of Grand Jurors from 1769 onwards. It also contains hundreds of surnames of local people who were brought to, or who had recourse to, justice in this way. (These institutions allowed juries of established tenants to deal cheaply and easily with a variety of chronic concerns, including crime, migration, retailing, common lands, and infrastructure).
